PRESIDENT'S VETOES Of the Pension Bills-Some Sharp Fighting

WASHINGTON, D. Co., July 7 .- In the House to-day the Speaker laid before the House the twenty-one veto messages vesterday. The first message was referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions without comment, but the second one—vetoing the bill granting of a pension to Edward M. Harrington—caused considerable debate, the Republicans trying to defeat its reference to a committee, advocating that its consideration be postponed until Fri-day next. A motion to this effect was de-feated—yeas, 98; nays, 121.

day next. A motion to this effect was defeated—yeas, 98; nays, 121.

Mr. Jackson, of Pennsylvanis, attacked the vato policy of the President, who, he declared, was not actuated by any regard for worth and merit of private pension bills. He was in sympathy with a party opposed to pensioning Union soldiers.

Mr. McMillan said the present President had signed more private pension glad to find that at least there was a man in the executive chair who had the nerve and courage to place his hand upon legislation when he thought it improper, whether it were pension or railroad legislation. [Applause on the Democratic side.] Cougress had gone altogether too far in the way of pension legislation, but there was a class of soldiers for whom there never was a voice raised in the House. They were the men who in April, May, June and July, 1801, filled the ranks of the army, actuated only by patriotic desires to sustain the National flag. Before the House went further in pensionfore the House went further in pension-ing the dead wood of the army it should make some provision for the men who went to the front in 1861.

A contest arose over the veto of a bill granting a pension to Sallie Ann Bradley. Mr. Matson moved its reference, and in Mr. Matson moved its reference, and in order to shut off debate demanded the previous question. Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, who originally introduced the bill desired some time to discuss it, and upon Mr. Matson declining to yield the Republicans refrained from voting and thus broke up the quorum. A call of the House broke up the quorum. A call of the House was ordered and the doors closed. The House then industriously refrained from doing anything for a quarter of an hour, when further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and having thus completed the call the House started out upon another one, the Republicans sgain refraining from voting when another call was ordered. The only thing which prevented the completion of the second call was the arrival of the hour of 5 o'clock when under its previous order the House asjourned.

The Confusion of Campbells.
Washington, D. C., July 7.—After the urnal was read in the House to-day, Mr. Hewitt made a personal explanation in regard to the roll call of Thurday last on the Birthold statue amendment. He had found in the Record that the four gentlemen (Messrs. T. J. Campbell, Felix Campbell, Bliss and Mahoney) to whose absence the defeat of the amendment was attributed ware recorded as voting in the absence the defeat of the amendment was attributed, were recorded as voting in the affirmative. He had remarked to the acting editor of the Washington Post that his impression had been otherwise, and was sorry if he had in any way caused these gentlemen any annoyance.

Mr. T. J. Campbell, of New York, said he was in the House on Thursday and voted for the amendment.

A YACHT RUN DOWN

The party was thrown into the water, excepting the sailors, who climbed upon the steamer, descriing their boat at the first steamer, descring their boat as the list shock. The Gazelle went ahead a short distance, and the captain then sent a boat to the rescue of the party struggling in the water. Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Lord were picked up unconscious, but Mrs. Wilson was drowned. For a time it was feared Mr. Wilson would not recover, and when he did read consciousness it was only to Mr. Wilson would not recover, and when he did regain consciousness it was only to become distracted over the tragic fate of the young wife he wedded but a few months ago. Mr. Wilson is confidential clerk to P. D. Armour, and is one of the chief men in Mr. Armour's office on La-Salle street.

Mr. Wilson, in giving an account of the disaster, says that just he proposed disaster, says that just he proposed.

Mr. Wilson, in giving an account of the disaster, says that last night he proposed a ride on the lake as a relief from the depressing weather. The yacht Josie was charlered, and the party sailed out around the Government pier, and was returning shortly after 9 o'clock. The Josie was near the end of the South pier, when the Gazelle was seen bearing in the same direction, coming from the shore. The boats were then seven hundred feet apart. One of the sailors in the yacht started to change its course away from the steamer, one of the sailors in the yacht started to change its course away from the steamer, which was advancing to a dangerous proximity, when his companion called to him to turn the other way. The helmsman obeyed, and at the same instant the Gazelle changed her course and in another instant struck the frail yacht, breaking its side. The waters poured in, and the yacht careened, throwing all parties out. Mrs. Lord was sitting in front of the mast, and was aided by one of the crew, but Mr. Wilson and his wife were thrown under the sail. Mr. Wilson, by a desperate struggle, succeeded in getting from under with his wife, but he was unable to render her further aid, as she lurched away from him and went under. The Gazelle kept on her course for some distance, and then stopped and threw out floaters and sent out two small boate, but the people were picked up by other craft and brought to shore.

John Eaton, Commissioner of Education, closed the forenoon exercises with a pleasing and forcible talk on the subject of education in general and that of teaching in particular.

of education in general and that of teaching in particular.

About ninety-five teachers are enrolled and at least twenty-five present who have not as yet enrolled.

Dr. De Hass has just arrived and the entire population will turn out to-night to listen to his lecture.

Every train brings a fresh supply of workers. Profs. Willey, Turner, and Parinton are among the latest arrivals. I was glad to see Superintendent Morgan present this afternoon. This is the first time, and his presence gives new life to the meeting.

It is very warm at this writing, but very pleasant in the auditorium.

PRIVATE DALZELL'S SOBRIQUET And the Fun He has with It-A Name With

Mr. Gilead, O. July 5.—Private Dalzell while here related some amusing experiences as a lecturer. He says the members of the Grand Army of the Republic have aiways treated him with great respect and unaffected familiarity, but that the higher officers of the army and the ladies gave him the cold shoulder generally. His name sounds gross and common te them and they seldom speak as they pass by. They usually like a bit of gold lace, a shoulder stripe and a resounding title, but for I—sobriquet of the Private they do not even try to conceal their contempt. LONDON, ONT., July 7 .- A profound sen ition was caused in this city, particularly in financial and legal quarters ,this morning, when a rumor got abroad that Edward Harris, of Harris, McGee & Co., solicitors, had become financially embarrassed and had fied from the city taking a large sum in cash and leaving various funds in which he was interested in bad shape. He is supposed to have gone to Toronto on Friday, and from there toward Niagara. It is known that before going he drew $20,000 in cash, but the amount in his hands is thought to be much larger than that. The firm was dissolved by the other members to-day, Harris has been well known as a solicitor for many years, and was reputed to be worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000. The funds involved are those held in trustchiefly by wealthy persons in Great Britain. The loss will be under $400,000. It is believed that Harris has become temporarily deranged.

"In Maine bu Business."

Bosron, July 7.—The full story about Mr. Lane's connection with the Abingdon National Bank cannot be told until Bank Examiner Gatchell shall have completed his investigation, which will occupy several days more. As the examination progresses the situation does not improve.

General Sherman once advised him to drop it.

"Agreed," quickly responded the Pri-vate, with his characteristic sarcasm, "I will if you drop yours. It is about all you and I have." Old Tecumseh smiled grim-v and dropped it-the subject-not the title!

"I have had the same experience myself," one day said Fred Douglass, as the Private reports it. "Charles Sumner, Mr. Giddings, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Garrison, Mr. Higginson and myself have often spoken from the same platform. They had to be approached with great ceremony after the macting and it was hardly more difficult.

from the same platform. They had to be approached with great ceremony after the meeting and it was hardly more difficult to get an introduction at the White House than to them. But as for me, well but few, and they old maids or old cranks, cared to be presented, and the rest passed along in silence—I mean of the leading people. But as for the under sort of common fellows, they would come up with boorish familiarity and introduce themselves with an offensive air which plainly showed that they considered it quite a condescension to speak to a nigger at all." And so it is precisely with the Private, as he is free to confers himself. "I have laughed over it a thousand times," said he, "though it cost me a seat in Congress and the Governorship of Ohio, ten years and more ago. My sobriquet is vulgar, the last thing in the world I should have adopted. Preachers, popular lecturers and show people come along and by their eloquence or good looks (and I have both.) attract the ladies and aristocrats whom I uniformly repel by my plebelan pseudonyam and self-imposed appellation of valgarity. They work their mashes and pass along in a twinkle, while I plod along with the nameless rank and file beneath their notice.". "Alss!" exclaimed the Private, as he

their notice.".
"Alas!" exclaimed the Private, as he

their notice.".

"Alss!" exclaimed the Private, ss he shook out his golden curls and closed one eye significantly, "I am doomed to end my career without ever attaining celebrity by a glorious scandal!" The nom de plume, Private, is essentially plobian and suggestive of extreme poverty, obscurity, mediocrity, ignorance, stupidity, vulgarity and worse. It is the negative of fame, wealth, distinction and honor. If it means anything it is a sneer at all this as vanity, and no one who has probed the Private's grim, sarcastic nature as I have, can have failed to find that this ites at the bottom of, this Democratic name par excellence, the nom de plume, "Private." It is a sneer in cold type!

It signifies all that and more, and it is not a pleasant name to even plebelan ears, and positively offensive to aristocratic ears, however large and capacious. No wonder aristocrats with ladies never introduce them to the Private, and so dislike the very word, and no wonder the Private feels himself doomed to die in a green, very green, old age, the happy husband of a very happy wife, whose mutual security was founded in obscurity. I thought from the tenor of his conversation that his pride was more severely wounded over this than anything else—namely, that the officers and ladies wounded over this than anything else namely, that the officers and ladies treated him with indifference and neglect, for he is not devoid of self-esteem, amount-for he is notdevoid of self-esteem, amounting sometimes to vanity.

A profound scholar, a man of genius, an acknowledged lawyer and orator of the first-class, he feels himself quite the equal of any sensational lecturer or preacher who can create such a furore among the ladies, officers and aristocracy. A man who never touches cards, liquor or any evil thing, he rebe is against the false position into which his unfortunate pseudotion into which his unfortunate pseudotion into which his unfortunate pseudo-nym has forced him, and is not slow to say that great injustice is done him by dis-criminating thus against him because of

"Thank God," said he as I rose to leave. "there is one place in this world where I can meet all these fine people, and the finest of them all on terms of equality, and that is in the public press, and from this all the aristocrats and blue bloods out of h-l never can ostracise me. No, nor all in h-l, either."

Newspapers Burned Out Newspapers Burned Out.

GALVESTON, TRYAS, July 7.—A special to the News from Dallas says: Yesterday morning a fire occurred enposed to have been caused by a piece of burning paper thrown through a broken out window in the upper story of the Jones building on Main street. In a few minutes the upper floor, occupied by Meyers & Hewitt, dealers in religious books, and the printing offices of the Labor Sun, Evening Herald and Volksblatt was in flames. The firemen succeeded in confining the fire to this and volcocat was in names. The firemen succeeded in confining the fire to this floor, but the largest, that of the Western Newspaper Union on the ground floor, was badly damaged by water. The loss to the Western Newspaper Union is estimated at $0,000; insurance on stock $5,000.

Disastrous Fire.

Rome, Onto, July 7 .- A dis strous fire occurred here to-day, destroying eleven occurred here to-day, destroying eleven dwelling houses, a boarding house, two large barns, two warehouses, a saw mill, two flouring mills, two car loads of flour, eight million feet of lumber and 5,000,000 of ahingles were burned. The lose will be $300,000 and insurance $50,000. Sixty men are thrown out of employment and twenty-seven families are left destitute. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have caught from a freight engine.

HOME RULERS DISHEARTENED

Thinks it is Time to Put on the Gloves-Ris Estimate of Results.

LONDON, July 7 .- Lord Wolverton, Post master General, upon receiving the news of the defeat of Mr. G. W. Erskine Rusell in the contest for Fulham, remarked that he gave up the fight and intimated that the main question now was whether Lord Salisbury would be obliged to constitute a government. There is no at-tempt made to conceal the fact that the Ministerialists are nervous and rapidly losing heart. Mr. Gladstone's buoyant and stirring letters and telegrams to varions candidates alone prevent a panio fortunately for the hopes of the Ministerialists who have been looking forward to a heavy Liberal vote in the agricultural districts, there are certain indications that the polling in the country will be very light.

LOBOUCHERE'S SUMMARY of the Election Beturns Up to Date-The LONDON, July 7.-Mr. Labouchere's pinion on the result of the election so far is given in this morning's Truth. He says: "The counties have yet to speak, Will they pull us through? I doubt it. The agricultural laborer knows and cares The agricultural laborer knows and cares little about Ireland, and he is told that had it not been for the Irish bill he by this time would have held a cow and three acres of land. The land bill has done us a vast amount of harm. The very possibility of the Irish landlords benefiting at the expense of the tax-payer has allenated many from Mr. Gladstone. As things now stand it looks to me as though the new Parliament will be much like the old. The Liberais will not have a decirive majority, nor the Conservatives even with the support of the Liberai and Radical unionists who made common cause with them. What then will happen? I suppose Lord Salisbury will be installed in office and be supported by Harrington's friends and the members for Birmingbam.

ton's friends and the members for Bir-mingham.

"What, then, will be the duty of the Radicals? To render it impossible for any one else than Mr. Gladstone to carry on the Government. This they can easily do with a strict alliance with the Irish. Should the Tories obtain the upper hand and attempt to pass a coercipa set the Should the Tories obtain the upper hand and attempt to pass a coercion act, the Radicals and the Irish should fight on until they are suspended. This will bring things to a crisis. Probably at first the Tories and their allies will say good riddance, but they will soon find that it will be practically impossible for the House to legislate with one-third of its members excluded. Having declared that the Irish have a right to resist coercion, we must back up their resistance should it be attempted. The time is arriving to take off the gloves."

What Does This Mean LONDON, July 7 .- Russia has informed the powers that Batoum is no longer a free port.

The Berlin press concurs in the belief that this announcement is the first step in the Czar's denunciation of the treaty of Berlin. Fifteen thousand Russian troops have passed O.leesa and are massing in Bessarabia.

The Daily News says that Russia's action in closing the port of Batonm in a gross breach of faith and is most discreditable tothe Czar. England, it says, ought not to recognize or condone ought not to recognize or condone this action. The News adds: If Russia continues to act thus she may find a general league against her involving an exclusion from International Intercourse, which she is scarcely able to afford.

New York, July 7 .- Following is a summary of the Rural New Yorker's annual crop report: From over 4,000 crop reports probable yield being 295,000,000 bushels, against 212,000,000 in 1885; with a slight against 212,000,000 in 1885; with a slight increase in acreage. Spring wheat has been considerably injured by drought and blight; the yield will probably be 140,000,000 bushels, against 145,000 000 last year. The total wheat crop will probably be 435,000,000 bushels, against 357,000,000 bushels, against 357,000,000 bushels last year.

In cats there has been a slight increase in acreage; the crop has been considers.

In oats there has been a slight increase in acreage; the crop has been considerably injured by drought and insect peats, and will probably yield 000,000,000 bushels, against 629,000,000 bushels in 1885. Of rye and barley there will be excellent crops, on a slightly increased area. There is a good stand of corn, and the outlook is excellent for a fine crop. Of early potatoes the crop will be heavy, and late potatoes are promising, especially in the West.

Failure of the Hop Crop.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., July 7 .- By condensed reports from Montgomery, Schoharie, Oneida and Madison counties it is sestimated that the hop crop this fall will not be one-quarter of the average yield. Three weeks ago the prospects were never better, but now the yards are literally covered with lice, English files and honey dew. Either appearing at this stage of the vine's growth augurs a failure of the crop. Of eighteen yards near Sharon Springs visited none had escaped their ravages. The leaves are dry and curled up. Growers who depend wholly upon their crop are very despondent. Where lour and six cents were offered for last year's hops three weeks ago, one 15 and harie, Oneida and Madison counties it is year's hops three weeks ago, now 15 and 18 cents are obtained. Very few old hops are in growers' hands.
